When I review content, there is a little information on the left that informs me that it's a review. Is there a way to identify which user started the review? A: There is not currently a way to identify which user started the review. But, there is a ticket about it to consider raising as a feature request. (I don't recall the link, but a quick search should be able to find it.) Though, as a side note, it might be possible to simply log in using the review link that is a hyperlink to the logged in user's profile. If the review is for that user, they would be prompted to log in. If the review is for a different user, 3da54e8ca3
